MOSQUITO BOMBERS STAB AT BERLIN DURING NIGHT, LESS THAN 12 HOURS AFTER LIGHTNINGS SWEEP THAT CITY

Large RAF Forces Execute An Extensive Mine-Laying Program—All Bombers Return Safely—Offensive Continues With American Marauders Roaring Toward Northern France This Morning.

By Charles A. Smith
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Mar. 4.—Speedy British Mosquito bombers stabbed at Berlin during the night, less than 12 hours after P-38 Lightnings carried out the war's first American offensive sweep over the Nazi capital.

Other targets in bomb-blasted Western Germany also were hit by the Mosquitoes and large RAF forces executed an extensive mine-laying program. All bombers returned safely, the Air Ministry announced.

Continuing the offensive against the continent in daylight, "tremendous" forces of Allied bombers, including deadly twin-motored American Marauders, roared toward Northern France this morning.

Soon after the bombers crossed the Straits of Dover to extend the current pre-invasion campaign by U. S. warplanes into its third consecutive day, explosions so heavy they shook buildings on the Dover coast reverberated from the Pas de Calais "rocket gun" area.

The night activity came after speedy twin-tailed American P-38 Lightnings, executing a 1,120-mile roundtrip flight, roared over the Nazi capital in "an offensive sweep" possibly heralding large-scale American heavy bomber assaults on Berlin.

The history-making flight coincided with attacks on targets in bomb-blasted Northwest Germany by fighter-escorted Fortresses and Liberators from which ten heavy bombers and six fighters failed to return.

The U. S. fighters were credited with downing eight German interceptors, and the number of enemy planes shot down by heavy bomber gunners had not been tabulated at the time air force headquarters announced the raids.

All magistrate hearings involving service men are attended by the SP, who follow up the cases.

FINANCIAL AID FOR DISABLED SERVICEMEN AWAITING FEDERAL COMPENSATION NOW AVAILABLE

Red Cross Grants Help During Period After Service Pay Stops

WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 4.—Service men, returning from combat duty in the war zones, are thanking their lucky stars that the American Red Cross Home Service has a post-war plan.

The plan, already in operation for service men discharged for disabilities, is expected to continue well into the post-war period. It assures temporary financial aid to men and their families if that aid is needed during the period pending settlement of claims for government benefits, and offers assistance with applications for benefits.

In March 1943, Red Cross filed over 6,000 claims for veterans' pensions. Six months later the number had jumped to 25,000 a month. Requests for Red Cross assistance in filing claims for government benefits continue to increase in proportion to the number of men discharged from military service.

At present the bulk of cases handled by Red Cross are filed for service men by Red Cross field directors attached to Army and Navy hospitals in this country where over 3000 Red Cross workers are on the job to take care of the details involved.

When men are discharged from the hospitals, and returned to their homes, Red Cross chapters take over the responsibility of aiding veterans and their families.

Any service man or his dependents, faced with hardship involving financial problems resulting from his service in the armed forces, or needing consultation service in connection with compensation, pensions, government insurance and other benefits, may now turn to Red Cross Home Service for assistance.

Information regarding the latest legislation affecting the service man and his family also is available through Red Cross chapters. Home Service workers who are kept advised.

Because the Red Cross does not ordinarily supplement benefits provided by the government, financial assistance from chapters will end as soon as government compensation or pensions begin.

Red Cross is recognized by law and authorized by the Veterans' Administration in the presentation of claims. Any service man wishing

A Lot of Heathens

(By "The Stroller")
At a small gathering of friends the other evening, by way of amusement, the group played "penny-ante-poker." Difficulty was experienced in finding chance by those engaged in the pastime.

Finally, one woman, a resident of Bristol Township, said: "I wish I had brought my missionary box."

After making the statement the one in question was very much embarrassed, but the words had been thoughtlessly spoken, or she may have thought that she was in the company of a lot of heathens.

Sixth Ward Firemen Receive Their Charter

He produced the deed and a copy of the charter for the perusal of the members. At the conclusion of his report he was accorded a rising vote of thanks.

Other committees reported progress and were instructed by President Paul Brown to continue their good work.

Norman E. Hetherington, minstrel show and dance committee, chairman, made a full report of the activities and progress made to date. He stated that all necessary arrangements are being taken care of and everything points to a successful affair. ## Fifth Army Troops Beat Down Attack

Naples—German patrols stabbed at Allied positions along the Anzio bridgehead and his guns belched death today after Fifth Army troops beat down a determined attempt by five Nazi divisions—approximately 75,000 men—to wipe out the bridgehead south of Rome.

Tremendous Armadas Cross Channel

London—Tremendous armadas of Allied warplanes, reported to be "the greatest ever seen crossing the channel," headed toward continental Europe today on the heels of an RAF night stab at Berlin. Virtually every known type of Allied warplane made up the vast fleets.

An official announcement disclosed that military objectives in northern France were blasted at an early hour following a night raid on Berlin which was carried out less than 12 hours after twin-tailed P-38 Lightnings gave the Nazi capital its first assault at the hands of an all-American flight.

The night attack against Berlin was accompanied by light jets at other objectives in Western Germany and by the sowing of mines in enemy waters. Not a single plane was lost.

TRIO OF BOOKS ABLY REVIEWED BY WOMEN

Mrs. R. W. DeLong, Mrs. Geo. E. Boswell, Mrs. F. K. Wills Take Part

BEFORE TRAVEL CLUB

The subject matter of a trio of books was presented to members of The Travel Club yesterday on the occasion of the annual book review program.

Two were of a humorous nature, and the third exceptionally interesting in the very tragicness of its make-up.

Taking the part of reviewers were Mrs. Russell W. DeLong, Mrs. George E. Boswell, and Mrs. Franklin K. Wills, they being presented to the club by Mrs. Richard T. Myers, chairman of literature.

"My Family, Right or Wrong," written by John Phillip Sousa, 3d, was the book which Mrs. DeLong reviewed. The author, the grandson of the well-known band leader, told in his book the story of an amazing family, the mother deciding it was just as cheap to move the family from the east to California as to buy new winter coats for all, she adding that they would have a lovely trip in the bargain. The father's weakness for fishing and the necessary equipment that goes with such a hobby, were mentioned. The constant turmoil in which the family found itself due to the mother's sudden decision and love of issuing

RATION TOKENS

The new ration token plan now in effect has caused some confusion, but its sponsors assert this will vanish in a few weeks.

The situation is complicated by the fact that until March 20 two systems, the old and the new, will be operating simultaneously.
Housewives will continue to use the brown stamps Y and Z from War Ration Book 3 and the green stamps K, L and M in Book 4 at their old values until their expiration date on March 20.

After that they will do all their food buying with the red and blue stamps of Book 4, with tokens used for making change in points.
The small stamps in Book 3, carrying pictures of tanks, airplanes and the like, and numbered consecutively from 1 to 48 on a page, will be reserved for special purchases, mostly non-food products.

There are two main features of the new token plan. All red and blue stamps in Book 4, whatever the value marked on them, become good for 10 points. To enable merchants to make change for purchases between this 10-point spread, the OPA has issued billions of fiber tokens worth one point and colored red or blue to correspond with the stamps.

Got it? O. K., then read on.
The red stamps and tokens are for purchases of meats and fats, the blue stamps and tokens for processed foods. As the tokens get into circulation, the shopper himself will be better able to give the exact amount in points. Although the new stamps will be given expiration dates, as in the past, the tokens never expire.

Although three new red stamps in Ration Book 4 are already valid, housewives are advised by the OPA to use up their old brown stamps in Book 3 first so that they can transfer completely to the new system as soon as possible. The red 8 A, 8 B and 8 C will be in effect through May 20, and the OPA cautions the public to remember that the value of each is 10 points.

A HUMAN VOLCANO

Japan is perched on a human volcano which may erupt with a loud report when American warships begin to chase Jap ships in Tokyo's home waters and American bombers level war plants and cities in Japan.

The human volcano may erupt in Korea, for the Koreans are ripe for revolt. When news out of Korea was choked off, the Japanese had—through their "Spiritual Mobilization League"—jailed thousands of Koreans for "harboring seditious thoughts." In 1938 it is asserted by the Korean Affairs Committee in the United States, 126,628 Koreans were arrested because the Japs suspected them of having seditious thoughts.

One result of suppression of Koreans has been a migration out of that country. There is a Korean national army fighting with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and an army of 3,000 or more Koreans is dashing about in Manchuria blasting everything within its reach that might be of help to the Japs. One report is that they fight skirmishes with the Japs at an average rate of three a day.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)
Pastor

Bristol Presbyterian Church

Almighty and Eternal Father, we thank Thee for the blessings which Thou dost give unto us. We thank Thee for life and health and strength. We thank Thee for the supplying of our daily needs, for the food we eat, for the clothes we wear, for the homes we enjoy. We thank Thee, O God, for we know that all these things come from Thee. We are capable of earning our livelihood only as Thou dost bless us with strength. We are capable of producing worldly things only because Thou hast given us the ability. Help us, O God, to consecrate all our possessions unto Thee, that in the testimony of our lips, in the testimony of our acts and in the testimony of our possessions Thy Name shall be glorified. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Comedy action, described as strictly furious, is the mainspring of "Never a Dull Moment," coming Sunday to the Grand Theatre. The Ritz Brothers are starred, which should be a guarantee of the picture's hilarious and hysterical qualities.

Headliners in an impressive supporting cast are Frances Langford, Mary Beth Hughes, Franklin Pangborn and Stuart Boyd Crawford. Stanley Roberts authored the original story, a lively concoction of gay situations dealing with a jewel robbery. Locale of the plot is a nightclub of doubtful reputation where the Ritz Brothers perform as entertainers but are unwitting accomplices to a gang of crooks.

RITZ THEATRE

Last night was laugh night at the Ritz Theatre, when "True to Life" was shown. The audience ate it up and no wonder! It is really one of the funniest pictures produced in a long time; and if you like to laugh, this is for you.

The four stars responsible for most of the fun are Mary Martin, Franchot Tone, Dick Powell and Victor Moore.

orders; the father's attention to children rather than to any type of work; and the son's love affair, provided much merriment not only for the reader but for those to whom the story was retold yesterday.

The second book reviewed was "The Case for Mrs. Surratt" (Campbell), the story of Mrs. John Harrison Surratt, who went to the scaffold for the murder of Abraham Lincoln. Mrs. Boswell capably presented the information given in the book. The family of Mrs. Surratt is said to have given the land on which the capitol at Washington now stands. Her husband became the first postmaster at Surrattsville, Md. The shiftlessness of the husband and his sudden death were told, likewise other details of the family leading up to the time where Mrs. Surratt found herself unwittingly involved in a turmoil of intrigue. John Wilkes Booth was a frequent visitor of her family, and as a favor for him she carried in a carriage supposedly borrowed from Booth a package of carbines and ammunition, not knowing what the paper-wrapped package contained. Events leading to the arrest of Mrs. Surratt and her daughter were given, and the filthy conditions of the prison mentioned. Not one word was Mrs. Surratt permitted in her own behalf at the trial before a military tribunal. (The club members were informed of the manner in which the woman, believed innocent of any knowledge of the crime, made her way to the scaffold. Two years later her name was cleared of all blame, and her son exonerated also, he having returned from Canada after his mother's arrest. Mrs. Boswell told how all persons who had betrayed innocent blood took their own lives within a short time after Mrs. Surratt's execution.

Mrs. Willis Jones, "Excuse My Dust" by Bellamy Partridge, as the book for review day. The subject matter presented the passing of the horse and the coming of the automobile. The change in the attitude and character of the people was shown during the years of transition. The manner in which the prizefighter accepted the "new-fangled" carriages, and the doubling of prices to drivers of cars on the part of restaurant owners, and others, were mentioned. "The book is full of humor and salty anecdotes," commented Mrs. Willis as she told of the changes which came with the passing of the horse and the inroads made by the horseless carriages.

Mrs. E. Linton Martin was in charge of the meeting, she calling upon Mrs. Boswell for reading of not indicate if the Lightnings dropped any bombs on Berlin or strafed any ground targets. All the fighters returned safely from their daring mission, and returning airmen expressed "amazement" at the weak air and ground defenses they encountered.

Mosquito Bombers Stab At Berlin During Night

Lieut. Col. Jack S. Jenkins, of Levelland, Tex., leader of the Lightning formation, said: "We caught some flak from other cities we passed over, but none from the big town, and we didn't get into a single fighter-ship coming or going."

He disclosed that his group flew over Berlin's outskirts, circled the city and went some 15 miles beyond it to the East. The Lightnings then returned and remained in the vicinity of Berlin for 15 minutes before heading for England.

The initial American sweep over Berlin was announced at the same time the Air Ministry revealed that RAP night raiders now are dropping new six-ton bombs — the world's biggest — on Nazi industries.

The new explosives were rained on the Pocke-Wall fighter factory at Alster, in Northern France, Friday night. The first "superblockbuster" hurled against the Axis fell on the huge Gnome-Rhone aero-engine works at Limoges on February 8th.

The destructive power of the bomb, it was stated, "already has proved enormous."

By International News Service

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's seasoned cavaliers battled torrential rains and off-repeated enemy counterattacks today to expand their hold on Los Negros island, in the Admiralty group. The Americans fanned out "in all directions" from captured Monote airfield, while their engineers speeded work of converting that "dome into a powerful striking base.

Fighting under almost impossible battle conditions on a terrain turned into a quagmire by unceasing rains, the Yanks battered down each successive Japanese counter-thrust and pushed forward. The enemy concentrated a heavy mortar fire on the American positions, and brought reinforcements from nearby Manus Island, but failed to stop MacArthur's drive.

The Japanese forces concentrated their counterattacks against the western edge of the American perimeter. For a full day and night, the enemy sought desperately to regain ground won by the Yanks, who came for a "look-see" and stayed to press a full-scale invasion.

Withering fire from troops of the dismounted First Cavalry Division, coupled with powerful aerial blows against the enemy, felled the Jap thrusts.

Low-flying Mitchell and Boston bombers swept over the American positions, protecting the Yank ground troops in their forward drive. When Jap interceptors sought to break up the assault by the twin-engine and attack bombers, Yank fighter pilots joined the fray. Taking on twice their number of enemy forces, the Allied fliers shot down eight and "probably" destroyed four others.

Other Allied planes raided Lorange airbase on Manus Island, blasted Kahili airfield with 84 tons of bombs, and hammered enemy positions at Torokina, on Bougainville, with 110 tons of high explosives. Fires were started among the objectives at the two latter places, both of which are situated on Bougainville island in the Solomons.

The air war in Europe continued without lull during the night and early this morning on the heels of the first American sortie over Berlin. After strong forces of Royal Air Force night bombers, possibly carrying Britain's new six-ton "super-blockbusters," returned from the continent, American raiders soared toward northern France.

Explosions reverberated from the Pas de Calais area soon after the American bombers headed for the continent. The blasts were so heavy they shook buildings on the Dover coast of England.

In Italy, the Fifth Army of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark prepared for a renewed drive toward Rome after beating the Germans in their third attempt to hurl the Allied forces from their Anzio beachhead.

GOOD BREAKFASTS LEAD THE WAY TO IMPROVED HEALTH

By Mary E. Jacoby

(Home Economics Representative)

A good breakfast for school children will go a long way toward preventing sickness during the winter. Because many children must start to school while it is still dark, mothers may have trouble getting children up early enough to give them the kind of breakfast they need.

Most children need 10 to 12 hours of sleep. Radio programs, homework, and disturbances by other family members often prevent a child from getting to bed on time. Children will feel more like eating a good breakfast if they are not rushed.

Starting breakfast with a tart fruit helps to build up an appetite and furnishes protective foods, such as vitamins and minerals, essential nutrition workers at the Pennsylvania State College point out. Raw apples, tomato juice, orange, grapefruit, prunes cooked without sugar, or rhubarb sauce are some of the winter fruits that can be served for breakfast.

A cooked and hot whole grain cereal served with little or no sugar but plenty of milk will provide food for growth and keep away that hungry feeling that is likely to come before noon. Occasionally raisins or raw diced apple can be stirred into the cereal just before serving. Bread or toast and a cup of cocoa or cold milk will complete this meal. Usually large servings of these foods are enough for most children. Active growing boys and some older girls may want an egg, warmed up potatoes or bacon added to this breakfast.

To prevent breakfasts from becoming tiresome, vary the fruit, cereal, and bread each day. For variety, serve an egg, French toast or bacon to the light eater.

A bulletin on "Food for Children" can be secured by writing to Miss Mary E. Jacoby, Home Economics Representative, Agricultural Extension Association, Doylestown, Pa.

Civilian Morale Is Low In Germany

crease the bombings and tighten the blockade on Germany. I emphasize the blockade; for Germany's economic situation is giving the Nazis more cause for alarm than the lowering of the morale of the population.

Although I have not been to Berlin since the Allies blasted it, I have been to Cologne, Stettin and Frankfurt-on-Oder, and other smaller German cities.

Stettin took a heavier blitzing than Warsaw. But it was not so much from the inhabitants of Stettin that I judged the decline in German civilian morale as from the evacuees from Hamburg, Berlin and the Ruhr who settled in East Prussia and Western Poland.

They were all apathetic and dulled by their experiences. Despair was written on their faces, although they were not given to giving their views in public, being afraid of death of being overheard by the Gestapo.

A well-known German physician in Lodz had about a dozen evacuees billeted on him. While he attended to his patients he had to leave his house to the evacuees and when he returned later in the day, they had ripped up his carpets for blankets and chopped up his furniture to make a fire.

He had no redress. Any complaint from him would have been regarded as unpatriotic and uncooperative.

But the present regime in Germany's biggest headache is the economic factor. In London one hears complaints about the food shortage, but the people here don't seem to realize they are living in a land of plenty in comparison with Germany.

True the ration books in Germany appears to indicate that the German is better fed. But it is not so. Food coupons have to be surrendered in restaurants in Germany, even in the factory workers' canteens. And it must be remembered in Germany that the possession of food coupons does not mean that there is food available to meet the coupons.

Unless you are a prominent party member you cannot replace your clothing coupons with clothes; to buy a new suit is an impossibility. You cannot even buy a pipe. I wanted to purchase a simple little amber brooch for my fiancée. But I couldn't buy it; I was asked to barter for it by surrendering some silver object. Money was no use.

The only free purchasable commodities in Germany are ersatz coffee, made from burnt acorns, seats for movie houses and newspapers. Newspapers are sold out within ten minutes of their issue, and few want to sit in a movie theater and listen to German propaganda. There seemed to be no shortage of the ersatz coffee, but it is unpalatable, indigestible stuff.

I forgot to mention that beer was available. The Germans grumbled at the poorness of its quality, but I must confess it was far better beer in quality than the beer sold in London. We must grant the Germans that solitary advantage. But against that spirits can still be bought in London, perhaps in small quantities, but there is not one drop available for the average person in Germany. Same goes for wine.

This seems to indicate that the food and other commodities looted from the occupied countries must be giving out, and the result is almost starvation. The most staple food I discovered in Stettin was a kind of paste made from muscles—highly flavored admittedly, but not very nourishing.

In occupied Poland only the hospitals get full creamed milk and only Germans are admitted to these hospitals; the rest have to be content with a low-grade skimmed milk.

Soldiers, too, are feeling the pinch of the economic situation, especially regarding their ammunition. I heard two German staff officers discussing the ammunition is down to the point of "un den mut aufrecht zu erhalten" (just enough to keep up the spirits of the troops).

The reaction of the average German to the Allied bombings is typical of the German mind. I was pretending to be asleep in a railroad coach and I heard one prosperous German describing the horror of one of the raids on Berlin. He said after the raid he emerged from the cellar and outside the asphalt on the street was ablaze. Another German, horror-stricken guttural: "To think that God should allow such things."

Yet during the blitz on London, Coventry and Liverpool these self-same people were yelling "more bombs, more bombs."

Yet the situation is deteriorating day by day. There are twelve million foreign workers who must be fed, clothed and kept warm. Otherwise they won't work.

There is no rubber, no coal, people have to "bundle in" to keep warm. No taxi's and in Cologne no street cars or omnibuses, and very few bicycles and the few that exist have only ersatz tires.

Shower Arranged For Mrs. Calvin Hutchinson

Mrs. Calvin Hutchinson, Edgely, was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Lester Grimes, Swain street. The affair was a surprise to Mrs. Hutchinson, who will be remembered as Miss Dorothy Edmann, a former resident of Bristol.

The living room was decorated with pink and white. A sprinkling can was attached to the lighting fixture, and streamers from the can extended to the gifts beneath. The evening was enjoyed playing games.

Questions, Answers About the WAVES

Do WAVES get a regulation haircut when they arrive at the training school?

No. Members of the WAVES determine for themselves the style of hair-do they want. The only regulation is that the hair shall not cover the coat collar.

Where is a girl sent after enlisting in the WAVES?

She goes to recruit school in New York City, for six weeks' indoctrination. Some WAVES are assigned to duty stations as soon as they complete this basic training. Others are sent to schools in Georgia, Florida, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Oklahoma or other places for specialized training.

Does the Navy provide transportation to the training school?

Yes, also subsistence en route.

How much civilian clothing should be taken to the training station?

Enough for a week or two. As underwear, sleeping garments and stockings are not issued by the Navy, enough of these items should be packed to provide for a girl's needs until she wishes to replenish her supply.

Young women interested in joining the WAVES should write, telephone or call the Navy Recruiting Station or Office of Naval Officer Procurement for a new booklet, "The Story of You in Navy Blue."
